Majority dishes are south indian items like idli, dosa, appam, sambhar, chutney, lemon rice, Chettinad Cuisine, fish curry and sea food.

Vegetarian food outlets outside the hotel can be few and limited so if you are not in group please plan your meals in advance.

Avoid drinking tap water, which has not been boiled, or ice cubes in drinks at all times, as most water sources in South India are untreated. One can easily get treated / boiled water at hotels. While on travel, advisable to use bottled drinking water.

The people of this area are mostly Non Vegetarian. Most of the hotels, serves both Vegetarian & Non-Vegetarian food.

The Jain food served by the hotels will be basic & cannot be compared, to the ones available, at the hometown of the traveler.

Decent Dressing covering the full body (sleeveless & shorts to be avoided) required while visiting temples or worship places. South India has many temple sights, so it's advisable to carry at least one set of ethnic clothes.

Hospitality & Services

People are generally good clean & service oriented. Hospitality is at its best in Kerala compared to Karnataka and Tamil Nadu.

The places have all types of accommodations from guest house, home stay to high end luxury hotels. While staying in houseboats in Kerala, very basic food and limited cutlery and things gets available. It has a problem of bad smell of water, mosquito and insects. We recommend to take luxury houseboats which are fully covered with glass windows with 20 hrs AC.

Sea sickness is very common on these trips as majority of the places are near coastal areas in south. Hotels have their in-house policy of providing heater on complimentary / chargeable basis. For hotels used in budget, hotels provide room heater on extra payment. This amount needs to be settled, directly by the guest, with the hotels, before check-out.
